

EMPIRE Children's Programs After School Program

Empire offers academic reinforcement through our visual and performing arts classes as we implement literacy development and teach components of art history, song writing, performance skills and critical thinking. We also offer Lego Robotics and Lego building classes where the students develop math and science skills by creating software and building robots.

The Empire athletic classes are designed to be developmentally appropriate for all age groups. Our sport instructors develop lesson plans for Pre-K – 8th grade. Each group learns team-building, safety and the fundamentals of each sport.

All of Empire's programs have a School Aged Child Care License (SACC) and adhere to the New York City Department of Health regulations for class size and adult-to-child ratios. We have one adult per every ten children for ages 6 – 12 years of age and one adult for every seven children ages 4 – 5 years of age for our after school program. Empire wants to create a culture where staff is engaged in safe, but fun activities at all times. When providing childcare, the Empire staff has been trained to get on the child's level and provide nurturing youth development.

All Empire staff must complete a child abuse and maltreatment background check through the Offices of Children and Family Services (OCFS) with the New York State Department of Education. Furthermore, because our programs are SACC license, all our staff must meet the check list requirements (fingerprints, criminal investigation) to work in any of our after school programs.

Empire offers the following classes: Sculpture; Pottery; Hockey; Soccer; Basketball; Gymnastics; Chess; Comic Book Creation; Music; Lego Building; Lego Robotics; Swim; Cooking and many more.
